Food for Serious Thought.

The war progresses slowly. I do not know which to admire most, the reckless, wind daring of our boys, or the -plended despeir of Aguinaldo's army. It becomes evident that we are meeting unly the reargainst of the Fargin s acray ambalance to the residence of Professor, but gam and conducting a masterly retreat. Chaplain Pierce told me that stood the journey well though naturally Aguinalde issued a proclamation to his people to the effect that any Filipino who paid exorbitant fees to churches or priests the Filipino government would but consider it unwise for him to return regard as guilty of a misdemeanor. Thus to court until there is absolutely no this half-savage man in one uncultured sentence faces squarely a problem which that no other people would be so magnanimous and kind to such a bitter foe. Yet when one sees a whole people, young and old, gray beard and suckling child, leave their homes, burn their sactuaries, moisten the hot rice fields with their blood in the frenzied effort to hold what they believe to be their own, strew their dead like winter's withered leaves across the desolated land-all that is chivalrous in a man leaps out to honor the

I feel that the best interests of the of the Filipinos lies in the friendly development of the islands by the Americans. But we have so many political schemers, syndicates and land thieves that sometimes I think the future is draped with clouds. If we can govern honestly, wisely and justly in the East, our coming is a star of hope to millions. If we bring the thirst for gold which come to these green islands only as a scourge. The coercion of our own iniquities will destroy us if we chimb to empire over broken vows and crushed New York, Aug. 16 .- A committee of hearts. The Persians have a fable that have met in Manila are doing very creditabie work. An old Filipino commissioner said to a group of us who went to enterview him: "Don't you think, gentlemen, that it is strange a nation like yours, who fought England so long, should be at enmity with my nation, who so long fought Spain for the same cause? Your Declaration of Independence, your declaration of rights, they are exactly what I believe, exactly what we, with Gen. Aguinaldo, are fighting for." Good will come out of it, no doubt. It is written in the stars that America must free the world. But he who enslaves another cannot himself be free. Unless we do fill and ample justice to this growing nascent race, we shall feel the dreadful congruity between the seed and the fruit. "If blood be the price of world empire, Lord God, we shall pay the bill."-Rev. Peter Mo-Queen in the Congregationalist.
